Guest Speaker: Pam Marshalla, M.A.

Frontal Lisp, Lateral Lisp, Distorted R

Pam Marshalla has been a practicing speech-language pathologist since 1976. She completed a Master's Thesis in phonology at the University of Illinois under the direction of Elaine Pagel Paden and Barbara Williams Hodson. She has worked with clients of all ages and ability levels in schools, hospitals, university clinics, parent-infant programs, residential facilities, and private practice. Pam is the author of nine books, one standardized assessment tool, and one children's music CD. She has taught hundreds of continuing education courses to tens of thousands of speech-language pathologists in the United States and Canada. These have included numerous invited local, state, regional, and national conventions. Pam is a "clinician's clinician" whose practical books and seminars successfully integrate research data and clinical experiences.
