The F. B. Parriot Educational Fund

On the eighth of December, 1958, nearly two years after the death of F. B. Parriott, the Educational Trust Fund was created by his widow, Mrs. Kathleen Caldwell Parriott, with the assistance of his sons, Robert B. Parriott, Van C. Parriott, and Jackson C. Parriott, to carry on the principles by which Mr. Parriott had so successfully lived, that is, the principle of quietly helping the deserving.

The Trust provides, “. . . the Trust shall be utilized by the Trustee to provide assistance to deserving students who might not otherwise get an education . . .”. The Trust further states, “All recipients . . . shall be advised that they are not under any obligation to repay any benefits or aid received . . .”.

One of the few restrictions on the funds are that, “All Funds, properties, and assets of the Trust shall be used within the United States or its possessions exclusively for the educational purposes herein provided and for no other purposes.”

The Corporate Trustee is the First National Bank and Trust Company of Tulsa, Oklahoma.

The Fund is administered by a five-member committee that “shall always consist of one person who is descendant by blood of F. B. Parriott, one person who is an educator and who resides within the State of Oklahoma, one person who is an officer of the Corporate Trustee, and two persons who are reputable citizens of Tulsa County, Oklahoma, and are interested in the education of young people.”

The Trust may be terminated any time after June 30, 2058, by a majority of the committee; however, it can be terminated earlier under special conditions and with court approval.

Brief Biography of F. B. Parriott

Foster Brooks Parriott was born March 15, 1878, near the town of Moundsville in Marshall County, West Virginia. He was one of six children born to George Wilson Parriott, a Methodist minister, and Jane Clark Parriott. His early boyhood was spent on a West Virginia farm.

When his father died at an early age, Mr. Parriott was forced to quit school and go to work at the age of 15 to assist in the support of his widowed mother and his brothers and sisters.

Mr. Parriott left the farm and worked as a day laborer digging pipeline ditches. There he met M. L. Benedum, who took a liking to young Parriott and took him to Pittsburgh as a personal aide. Mr. Parriott served in various positions with a series of Benedum-related companies in wildcatting ventures; eventually he was elected president of the Transcontinental Oil Company.

Mr. Parriott moved the general offices of Transcontinental Oil from Pittsburgh to Tulsa at about the time that Transcontinental and its associates opened one of the great oil fields of the world, the Yates Pool in Pecos County, Texas, in October 1926.

Through a succession of companies, some large and some small, Mr. Parriott achieved prominence as one of the outstanding Oklahoma oil men in the 1930s.

To his mother must be attributed some of his finer characteristics—his integrity, his kindness, his humility, and his generosity. He shared his success with liberality in a most unostentatious way in many philanthropies and civic services.
