Honors Scholars build their Honors Portfolio in part by reflecting at the end of each semester about the ideas they have engaged, the work they have accomplished, and how both have shaped their thinking. The next three questions ask you to engage in a similar sort of reflection. We hope you will answer them as if they are your first entry into your Honors Portfolio at TU.

1. Tell us about the five books that have had the most influence on you. Please be sure to briefly describe each work, and to give the Selection Committee a sense of what makes each work so significant to you. (500-700 words)
2. Please share a sample of your written work. (700 words max)
3. What is the most pressing question you want to investigate and answer during your undergraduate studies? (300 words max)

If submitting your application via email, paste your responses to these three questions into the body of the email message, and include this form as an attachment. If submitting your application by mail, print and attach your responses to the paper application.
